H1 – Linux Libertine Bold, 36/24

H2 – LINUXLIBERTINE BOLD, 16/12 – ALL CAPS

H3 – Linux Libertine Bold, 12/12

Body – Linux Libertine Regular. 10/12

NOTES:

This is the most basic concept, taking what you already had, cleaning it up and formalizing it.

Your custom title font generator greates images that are too low resolution for print, and too cumbersome to be used to generate Headings for an entire book. I highly recommend using that only for the title font, and finding a way to generate a vector file instead of a raster file so it can be properly scaled.

Background:

Light texture, with a cool tint to compliment the primary purple. Using the patterned overlay you provided, with added splotches of blue and purple.

Folio:

Vectorized provided graphics so they can be upscaled to print resolution. Implimented in a similar way that you had them

Color:

The color pallete is based around the primary purple from your provided files. Since there wasn't a consistent color across all files I've settled on the CMYK value 73,84,0,0 for print.

A secondary color of 25,30,0,0 has been used for Folio and some graphics to keep them from visually competing with the content.

The backgroudn splotches are screened back and blended from the following colors:

69,93,0,0
15,100,100,0
100,0,0,0

Basics of Questguard RPG

WELCOME!

Well met, adventurer! ..., you are in the right place! In this guide you will find all about roleplaying and Questguard - how to create a character, how to play the game, a glossary of all rules and a section with several tips for Quest Masters.

Warning - This Intro section is still heavily Work In Progress.

GROUPS (& OUR COMMUNITY)

Questguard has a dedicated community on Discord where we always organize new campaigns and sessions for players both new and old.

Hit Play With Us! in the upper corner of the menu to see our Discord, and find people to play with!

If you want to play, sometimes it's as easy as creating a character outside of a game, finding a group to play with via an online platform and just joining the game. However, tabletop RPG's can be so much more than just a one-time experience!

Many QM's choose to run 'campaigns', which is a series of game sessions that continue from one play session to another, and expand into an overarching story and develop the players' characters' personalities and powers.

Thus, if you want it to be a more intricate experience, you should find a group that fits you; make sure you get on well with everyone else and everyone is on the same page when it comes to playing.

Each QM is different. A QM might run a story based on the Lord of the Rings books or in some made up world. Some QM's have different styles of playing - some are more focused on telling a story, others are more focused on giving the players options. Some are friendly, some... less so.

Ultimately, just like finding a group to play board games with, you all should have roughly the same expectations and mindset. Some games are more relaxed, drinking and eating pizza. Some are more intense and take things seriously. If you find a group, make sure you ask what kind of group they are.

Most groups have one Quest Master and between 3 and 6 other players who play as individual characters.

The recommended sweet spot for Questguard is one Quest Master and 4 to 5 other players.

A play session can last as long as the group desires. Usually, you should dedicate at least 1:30 to 2 hours to a play session. A lot of players find they want to keep going after that, since time flies fast when you're having fun and making progress through the story!

LEARNING THE RULES

If you never played a Table-Top Roleplaying Game, we recommend you watch this video, to get a grasp of what QuestGuard is: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2PEt5RdNHNw

If you want to try Questguard specifically and you have experience with Dungeons and Dragons (5th edition or One D&D), see the Transition Guide (From D&D)" page, in the Learn To Play menu. It will provide you an easy introduction to Questguard from a D&D perspective.

If you never played a tabletop RPG but you have friends who have played Dungeons and Dragons, send them a link to the "D&D to CoH transition guide" page!

If you decide to play online, there are several platforms for playing Questguard that simulate real life tables with miniatures, dice, music, etc. As of 2023, the most popular such platform is Roll20 (https://roll20.net). It is free for all players and Quest Masters alike and supports many roleplaying games, including Questguard.

The complete new player guide is currently TODO/ Work In Progress.

USING THIS GUIDE

TODO

Using the Website

To find a certain rule, you can press Ctrl + F on a desktop (or use the Find function on mobile) to find the rule you're looking for.

All the Races, Classes, Feats, Abilities, etc can be found under Database.

HOW TO MAKE A CHARACTER

Download the friendly PDF "Character Creation Guide" from the Learn To Play section.

Character Creator

No time to read the guide? Don't worry, we've got you covered! QuestGuard features a complete online Character Creator, that takes you step-by-step through character creation. Login using Google, and get going! All your Heroes will be saved in the cloud, so you can access them from any device.

Character Sheets

If you like to use pen and paper, there are several types of character sheets. You can find them all at Game, under the Character Sheets section.

We recommend downloading the PNG version, or filling the PSD version using a free tool like Photopea.

Stats and Attributes

STATS

There are 5 Stats in QuestGuard, and these reflect your strengths and weaknesses: Might (physical strength and pain tolerance), Instinct (speed and agility), Focus (knowledge and magic prowess), Presence (the 5 senses and willpower), and Presence (social game and initiative).

Each of these 5 Stats affects a Combat Attribute of your Hero.

- ◊ Might: Increases your maximum Health (each Might increases your Max Health by 3).
- ◊ Instinct: Increases your Movement Speed (each Instinct increases your Movement Speed by 0.5 meters).
- ◊ Focus: Increases the number of Spells and Abilities you can have (each Focus allows you to pick an extra Talent, explained later). Depending on your Race, Focus might also affect the number of Languages you know and the number of Non-Combat Skill Points.
- ◊ Presence: Increases your Health Regen after combats (each Presence increases your Health Regen by 2).
- ◊ Presence: Increases the number of Actions you can take on the first Turn each combat (each Presence increases your Initiative by 0.5).

Stat Limit

The baseline Stat limit is 3, and increases by 1 every 3 Levels (3 for Levels 1 to 3, 4 for Levels 4 to 6, 5 for Levels 7 to 9, and unlimited from Level 10).

You may not go above the Stat Limit in any way, other than with buffs, magic items, and Abilities that explicitly say they can go over the Stat Limit.

Otherwise, if your Stat would be increased above the Stat Limit, nothing happens and the bonus is lost.

NON-COMBAT SKILLS

You may have bonuses to certain non-Combat Skills, which will be written explicitly on your Hero Sheet.

For example, you may have +2 in Occultism, which will give you +2 to all Rolls about knowing "occult" or dark information (the main Stat you're using doesn't matter).

Note that you add the Skill bonus on top of the Stat you're using for the main Check (e.g. if you have +2 in Occultism, and 3 Focus, you would roll 2d6 + 2 + 3).

SKILL POINTS

When creating your Hero, you have a number of non-combat Skill Points equal to 2 + Focus, which you can use to give your Hero bonus to Rolls for certain activities.

For example, you can spend 2 Skill Points to write that you have +2 in Acrobatics (+2 to all Rolls that can be interpreted as "acrobatics", like jumping and performing backflips).

In Questguard, there isn't a list of Skills with bonuses written directly on your Hero Sheet or elsewhere.

You determine yourself how Skilled you are in any activity of your choosing.

Think of any specific activity! Sight, smell, and other bodily senses are also Skills.

Skills are often up to interpretation. For example, the Quest Master might ask you for a general Roll to see if you can spot the spy, and it is up to you to mention you are Skilled in something that would help you. Try to come up with a reason why your Skill can be applied in this situation!

Skill Limit

A Skill you have can't be higher than your highest Stat.

If it's higher than your highest Stat, clamp the bonus to that number (e.g. if you have +4 in Fishing but your highest Stat is 3 in Focus, your bonus for Fishing will only be +3 until you reach 4 in Focus).

H1 – Linux Libertine Bold, 36/24

H2 – Grenze Semibold, 20/12

H3 – Linux Libertine Bold, 12/12

Body – Linux Libertine Regular. 10/12

Notes:

Background:

Folio:

Color:

Basics of Questguard RPG

Welcome!

Well met, adventurer! ..., you are in the right place! In this guide you will find all about roleplaying and Questguard - how to create a character, how to play the game, a glossary of all rules and a section with several tips for Quest Masters.

Warning - This Intro section is still heavily Work In Progress.

Groups (& our community)

Questguard has a dedicated community on Discord where we always organize new campaigns and sessions for players both new and old.

Hit Play With Us! in the upper corner of the menu to see our Discord, and find people to play with!

If you want to play, sometimes it's as easy as creating a character outside of a game, finding a group to play with via an online platform and just joining the game. However, tabletop RPG's can be so much more than just a one-time experience!

Many QM's choose to run 'campaigns', which is a series of game sessions that continue from one play session to another, and expand into an overarching story and develop the players' characters' personalities and powers.

Thus, if you want it to be a more intricate experience, you should find a group that fits you; make sure you get on well with everyone else and everyone is on the same page when it comes to playing.

Each QM is different. A QM might run a story based on the Lord of the Rings books or in some made up world. Some QM's have different styles of playing - some are more focused on telling a story, others are more focused on giving the players options. Some are friendly, some... less so.

Ultimately, just like finding a group to play board games with, you all should have roughly the same expectations and mindset. Some games are more relaxed, drinking and eating pizza. Some are more intense and take things seriously. If you find a group, make sure you ask what kind of group they are.

Most groups have one Quest Master and between 3 and 6 other players who play as individual characters.

The recommended sweet spot for Questguard is one Quest Master and 4 to 5 other players.

A play session can last as long as the group desires. Usually, you should dedicate at least 1:30 to 2 hours to a play session. A lot of players find they want to keep going after that, since time flies fast when you're having fun and making progress through the story!

Learning the rules

If you never played a Table-Top Roleplaying Game, we recommend you watch this video, to get a grasp of what QuestGuard is: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2PEt5RdNHNw

If you want to try Questguard specifically and you have experience with Dungeons and Dragons (5th edition or One D&D), see the Transition Guide (From D&D)" page, in the Learn To Play menu. It will provide you an easy introduction to Questguard from a D&D perspective.

If you never played a tabletop RPG but you have friends who have played Dungeons and Dragons, send them a link to the "D&D to CoH transition guide" page!

If you decide to play online, there are several platforms for playing Questguard that simulate real life tables with miniatures, dice, music, etc. As of 2023, the most popular such platform is Roll20 (https://roll20.net). It is free for all players and Quest Masters alike and supports many roleplaying games, including Questguard.

The complete new player guide is currently TODO/ Work In Progress.

Using this guide

TODO

Using the Website

To find a certain rule, you can press Ctrl + F on a desktop (or use the Find function on mobile) to find the rule you're looking for.

All the Races, Classes, Feats, Abilities, etc can be found under Database.

How To Make A Character

Download the friendly PDF "Character Creation Guide" from the Learn To Play section.

Character Creator

No time to read the guide? Don't worry, we've got you covered! QuestGuard features a complete online Character Creator, that takes you step-by-step through character creation. Login using Google, and get going! All your Heroes will be saved in the cloud, so you can access them from any device.

Character Sheets

If you like to use pen and paper, there are several types of character sheets. You can find them all at Game, under the Character Sheets section.

We recommend downloading the PNG version, or filling the PSD version using a free tool like Photopea.

Stats and Attributes

Stats

There are 5 Stats in QuestGuard, and these reflect your strengths and weaknesses: Might (physical strength and pain tolerance), Instinct (speed and agility), Focus (knowledge and magic prowess), Presence (the 5 senses and willpower), and Presence (social game and initiative).

Each of these 5 Stats affects a Combat Attribute of your Hero.

- ◊ Might: Increases your maximum Health (each Might increases your Max Health by 3).
- ◊ Instinct: Increases your Movement Speed (each Instinct increases your Movement Speed by 0.5 meters).
- ◊ Focus: Increases the number of Spells and Abilities you can have (each Focus allows you to pick an extra Talent, explained later). Depending on your Race, Focus might also affect the number of Languages you know and the number of Non-Combat Skill Points.
- ◊ Presence: Increases your Health Regen after combats (each Presence increases your Health Regen by 2).
- ◊ Presence: Increases the number of Actions you can take on the first Turn each combat (each Presence increases your Initiative by 0.5).

Stat Limit

The baseline Stat limit is 3, and increases by 1 every 3 Levels (3 for Levels 1 to 3, 4 for Levels 4 to 6, 5 for Levels 7 to 9, and unlimited from Level 10).

You may not go above the Stat Limit in any way, other than with buffs, magic items, and Abilities that explicitly say they can go over the Stat Limit.

Otherwise, if your Stat would be increased above the Stat Limit, nothing happens and the bonus is lost.

Non-Combat Skills

You may have bonuses to certain non-Combat Skills, which will be written explicitly on your Hero Sheet.

For example, you may have +2 in Occultism, which will give you +2 to all Rolls about knowing "occult" or dark information (the main Stat you're using doesn't matter).

Note that you add the Skill bonus on top of the Stat you're using for the main Check (e.g. if you have +2 in Occultism, and 3 Focus, you would roll 2d6 + 2 + 3).

Skill Points

When creating your Hero, you have a number of non-combat Skill Points equal to 2 + Focus, which you can use to give your Hero bonus to Rolls for certain activities.

For example, you can spend 2 Skill Points to write that you have +2 in Acrobatics (+2 to all Rolls that can be interpreted as "acrobatics", like jumping and performing backflips).

In Questguard, there isn't a list of Skills with bonuses written directly on your Hero Sheet or elsewhere.

You determine yourself how Skilled you are in any activity of your choosing.

Think of any specific activity! Sight, smell, and other bodily senses are also Skills.

Skills are often up to interpretation. For example, the Quest Master might ask you for a general Roll to see if you can spot the spy, and it is up to you to mention you are Skilled in something that would help you. Try to come up with a reason why your Skill can be applied in this situation!

Skill Limit

A Skill you have can't be higher than your highest Stat.

If it's higher than your highest Stat, clamp the bonus to that number (e.g. if you have +4 in Fishing but your highest Stat is 3 in Focus, your bonus for Fishing will only be +3 until you reach 4 in Focus).

VERSION 3

H1 – Linux Libertine Bold, 36/24

H2 – Grenze Semibold, 20/12

H3 – Linux Libertine Bold, 12/12

Body – Linux Libertine Regular. 10/12

Notes:

Background:

Folio:

Color:

Basics of Questguard RPG

Welcome!

Well met, adventurer! ..., you are in the right place! In this guide you will find all about roleplaying and Questguard - how to create a character, how to play the game, a glossary of all rules and a section with several tips for Quest Masters.

Warning - This Intro section is still heavily Work In Progress.

Groups (& our community)

Questguard has a dedicated community on Discord where we always organize new campaigns and sessions for players both new and old.

Hit Play With Us! in the upper corner of the menu to see our Discord, and find people to play with!

If you want to play, sometimes it's as easy as creating a character outside of a game, finding a group to play with via an online platform and just joining the game. However, tabletop RPG's can be so much more than just a one-time experience!

Many QM's choose to run 'campaigns', which is a series of game sessions that continue from one play session to another, and expand into an overarching story and develop the players' characters' personalities and powers.

Thus, if you want it to be a more intricate experience, you should find a group that fits you; make sure you get on well with everyone else and everyone is on the same page when it comes to playing.

Each QM is different. A QM might run a story based on the Lord of the Rings books or in some made up world. Some QM's have different styles of playing - some are more focused on telling a story, others are more focused on giving the players options. Some are friendly, some... less so.

Ultimately, just like finding a group to play board games with, you all should have roughly the same expectations and mindset. Some games are more relaxed, drinking and eating pizza. Some are more intense and take things seriously. If you find a group, make sure you ask what kind of group they are.

Most groups have one Quest Master and between 3 and 6 other players who play as individual characters.

The recommended sweet spot for Questguard is one Quest Master and 4 to 5 other players.

A play session can last as long as the group desires. Usually, you should dedicate at least 1:30 to 2 hours to a play session. A lot of players find they want to keep going after that, since time flies fast when you're having fun and making progress through the story!

Learning the rules

If you never played a Table-Top Roleplaying Game, we recommend you watch this video, to get a grasp of what QuestGuard is: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2PEt5RdNHNw

If you want to try Questguard specifically and you have experience with Dungeons and Dragons (5th edition or One D&D), see the Transition Guide (From D&D)" page, in the Learn To Play menu. It will provide you an easy introduction to Questguard from a D&D perspective.

If you never played a tabletop RPG but you have friends who have played Dungeons and Dragons, send them a link to the "D&D to CoH transition guide" page!

If you decide to play online, there are several platforms for playing Questguard that simulate real life tables with miniatures, dice, music, etc. As of 2023, the most popular such platform is Roll20 (https://roll20.net). It is free for all players and Quest Masters alike and supports many roleplaying games, including Questguard.

The complete new player guide is currently TODO/ Work In Progress.

Using this guide

TODO

Using the Website

To find a certain rule, you can press Ctrl + F on a desktop (or use the Find function on mobile) to find the rule you're looking for.

All the Races, Classes, Feats, Abilities, etc can be found under Database.

How To Make A Character

Download the friendly PDF "Character Creation Guide" from the Learn To Play section.

Character Creator

No time to read the guide? Don't worry, we've got you covered! QuestGuard features a complete online Character Creator, that takes you step-by-step through character creation. Login using Google, and get going! All your Heroes will be saved in the cloud, so you can access them from any device.

Character Sheets

If you like to use pen and paper, there are several types of character sheets. You can find them all at Game, under the Character Sheets section.

We recommend downloading the PNG version, or filling the PSD version using a free tool like Photopea.

Stats and Attributes

Stats

There are 5 Stats in QuestGuard, and these reflect your strengths and weaknesses: Might (physical strength and pain tolerance), Instinct (speed and agility), Focus (knowledge and magic prowess), Presence (the 5 senses and willpower), and Presence (social game and initiative).

Each of these 5 Stats affects a Combat Attribute of your Hero.

- ◊ Might: Increases your maximum Health (each Might increases your Max Health by 3).
- ◊ Instinct: Increases your Movement Speed (each Instinct increases your Movement Speed by 0.5 meters).
- ◊ Focus: Increases the number of Spells and Abilities you can have (each Focus allows you to pick an extra Talent, explained later). Depending on your Race, Focus might also affect the number of Languages you know and the number of Non-Combat Skill Points.
- ◊ Presence: Increases your Health Regen after combats (each Presence increases your Health Regen by 2).
- ◊ Presence: Increases the number of Actions you can take on the first Turn each combat (each Presence increases your Initiative by 0.5).

Stat Limit

The baseline Stat limit is 3, and increases by 1 every 3 Levels (3 for Levels 1 to 3, 4 for Levels 4 to 6, 5 for Levels 7 to 9, and unlimited from Level 10).

You may not go above the Stat Limit in any way, other than with buffs, magic items, and Abilities that explicitly say they can go over the Stat Limit.

Otherwise, if your Stat would be increased above the Stat Limit, nothing happens and the bonus is lost.

Non-Combat Skills

You may have bonuses to certain non-Combat Skills, which will be written explicitly on your Hero Sheet.

For example, you may have +2 in Occultism, which will give you +2 to all Rolls about knowing "occult" or dark information (the main Stat you're using doesn't matter).

Note that you add the Skill bonus on top of the Stat you're using for the main Check (e.g. if you have +2 in Occultism, and 3 Focus, you would roll 2d6 + 2 + 3).

Skill Points

When creating your Hero, you have a number of non-combat Skill Points equal to 2 + Focus, which you can use to give your Hero bonus to Rolls for certain activities.

For example, you can spend 2 Skill Points to write that you have +2 in Acrobatics (+2 to all Rolls that can be interpreted as "acrobatics", like jumping and performing backflips).

In Questguard, there isn't a list of Skills with bonuses written directly on your Hero Sheet or elsewhere.

You determine yourself how Skilled you are in any activity of your choosing.

Think of any specific activity! Sight, smell, and other bodily senses are also Skills.

Skills are often up to interpretation. For example, the Quest Master might ask you for a general Roll to see if you can spot the spy, and it is up to you to mention you are Skilled in something that would help you. Try to come up with a reason why your Skill can be applied in this situation!

Skill Limit

A Skill you have can't be higher than your highest Stat.

If it's higher than your highest Stat, clamp the bonus to that number (e.g. if you have +4 in Fishing but your highest Stat is 3 in Focus, your bonus for Fishing will only be +3 until you reach 4 in Focus).